American airmen are now on the firing line in France helping to drop bombs.

Can't lose the Smith family. They are four of them in the General Assembly—one in the Senate and 3 in the House.

It is a judgment on the general assembly too soon. There is no any legislative body that six and one preacher are in.

Russian peace parley was not held Saturday, as the Russian had left Brest-Litovsk when the Germans returned. Later Trotsky decided to meet them.

Wm. L. Sibert and Rear Admiral R. Fletcher, have been sent to the front and have been sent home in France. In time of war, a man shoot or give up the gun.

Soldiers are known to have killed, one is missing and thirty persons were injured in a rear collision on the Canadian Pacific near Dorval Station Friday.

One hundred Polar bears in the Bronx Zoo had the time of their life in the recent zero weather. The tropical animals were kept alive in steam-heated cages. It is all according to what is used to.

Bolshevik bunch have decided Russia shall adopt phonetic spelling January 14. Three vowels consonant were eliminated. The Russian alphabet. We hope to see what is to be done in Brest-Litovsk, Pskov, Tobolsk and other pronounceable places.

Lauburg, the German envoy to Russia, whose fool telegrams broke with Germany, is said to be "insane." How a man who answered his questions and followed his instructions sink like ships?

There are five doctors in the State of Kentucky: J. H. Evans, of Beattyville; Morris, of Greenup; S. P. Trevington; B. M. Taylor, of Lexington; D. Whitaker, of Louisville. There are six in the State of Ohio: J. E. Brown, McLean; S. D. Anderson; J. E. Lilly, Morristown; W. B. Bannon, Stanford; Louisville, and T. R. Welch, Louisville.

Subscription price of the Daily Kentuckian to subscribers will be a month and advance on the tri-weekly will be $1.00 either the daily or weekly. It will be a simple matter to have the subscription one-third for the weekly. So your renewals or new subscriptions will be a simple matter from one to the other.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY WILL START ITS SESSION TO-DAY

Robert T. Crowe, of Oldham, a Stanley Supporter To Be Speaker of The House of Representatives. ALL FOR DRY AMENDMENT

Governor's Message Will Be Submitted With Recommendations For Needed Legislation.

Members of the General Assembly began gathering in Louisville Saturday and after conferences between the Administration and Haley factions, the organization contests were transferred to Frankfort.

Caucuses of both Houses were held yesterday afternoon and the General Assembly will be organized this morning.

Thomas A. Combs and Clem S. Nunn were tipped as the contestants for Speaker pro. tem. of the Senate, with Combs the Administration candidate, claiming 16 of the 25 Democratic votes.

Robt. T. Crowe of Oldham, and C. M. Thomas, of Bourbon, were candidates for Speaker of the House, with Crowe, the Administration man, claiming 38 votes, more than enough.

The "dry" resolution offered by Senator Frost two years ago will be introduced this time by Representative Ballard, both sides being pledged to a dry amendment.

With both sides now pledged to submission of prohibition to the people the hope is borne that the resolution will be adopted speedily and this great obstacle removed early in the session. This does not entirely dispose of the prohibition issue, however, as there is the nation-wide amendment submitted by the National Congress to the State Legislatures, and it is certain that resolutions to adopt it will be introduced.

By common consent the biggest question before the approaching session is the budget system. It means that the General Assembly, which should fix the tax rate every two years, and doesn't, should also make appropriations for all State expenditures for two years at a time, instead of continuing appropriations.

It is expected that Gov. Stanley will come out for such a plan.

The new Tax Commission's report will be much discussed during the session, judging by the calls for it. It makes no vague or hesitating statement, but unequivocally asserts that the new law will do the business and frankly sets forth measures to strengthen it with reasons why. Incidentally the commission is satisfied that the $15,000 annual appropriation will not by one-fourth cover the necessary expenditures of the department.

Gov. Stanley, whose message was written during the last week, will review the achievements of his administration, especially the tax reform, and recommend a number of the department suggestions, including some of the Tax Commission, the Prison Commission, Board of Control, Department of Education and Military Department, at least.

He long since expressed himself in favor of the submission of the State-wide prohibition amendment at this session.

AGED MAN KILLED BY ACCIDENT

Struck by Automobile While Attempting to Cross Ninth Street.

OCCURRED SATURDAY

Driven by Walter Thompson, Slowing Up, Near Postoffice.

Rev. John Moore, an aged and infirm colored Baptist preacher was struck by a car Saturday evening at 6:00 o'clock on Ninth street in front of Friedman's Meat Shop and was so badly injured that he died at one o'clock Sunday morning.

From the best information obtainable, the accident was wholly unavoidable. The car was driven by Walter Thompson, a young son of Rev. C. M. Thompson, and was a Buick touring car. In it besides the driver was Misses Helen Thompson, Grace Richards and Rosalie Miller.

The car was moving at a slow rate of speed in the direction of the post-office on the southside of the street. A passing buggy it is supposed obscured the approaching car from the old man, who was nearly 90 years of age, and he stepped directly in front of the car as it crossed the street. The young man put on the brakes and brought the car to a sudden stop, but not in time to prevent it from striking the old man, who was knocked down and fatally hurt. He was taken to his home at 306 South Liberty street, where he lingered several hours.

The victim was one of the oldest men in the city and was one of the wealthiest men of his race.

He is survived by his second wife and two children by his first wife.

Young Thompson has been driving his father's car for several years and is an experienced and careful driver.

The unfortunate accident, the first fatal accident from an automobile in the city, caused widespread sadness, and sympathy is felt for all concerned.

The funeral will be held at the Virginia Street Baptist church tomorrow afternoon. The arrival of Rev. Moore's son from a distance is awaited.

ANOTHER SHAKE-UP

Wipes Out the Remaining Portion of Guatemala City.

The earthquake shocks in Guatemala, Central America, late in December were overestimated at first. A total of 1500 deaths was later reduced to "a few deaths," but practically the whole of Guatemala City was demolished. Now comes a report that still worse shocks on Jan. 3 and 4 completed the destruction of the ill-fated city, with the loss of 300 lives. This time the news comes from several reliable sources.

Republican County Officers Take Charge of Offices For Four Years.

NOT MUCH FORMALITY

All of Them Retain the Lady Clerks and Deputies.

Yesterday was moving day in the public offices, all of the new officers qualifying for their duties.

County Judge G. H. Champlin succeeded Judge Knight retaining Miss Bessie Sory as clerk.

Clerk Geo. B. Powell succeeded L. J. Harris with L. E. Barnes as deputy and retaining Misses Kathleen Stowe and Flora Harris as deputies.

Sheriff J. J. Claiborne and Deputies L. R. Davis and Jas. Gresham took charge. The new sheriff retains Miss Carrie Johnson as office deputy.

Jailer W. A. Nichols succeeded E. A. Mullins.

Supt. L. E. Foster qualified for another term.

Dr. L. H. Lovan qualified as coroner to succeed Dr. O. E. Wright.

County Attorney, S. T. Fruit succeeded Ira D. Smith.

All members of the Fiscal court also were sworn in.

Judge S. T. Ashmore, of Crofton, was the first officer sworn in by Judge Champlin.

Around the city hall few changes were made. Commissioner F. H. Bassett and Mayor R. T. Stowe exchanged places and Commissioner W. R. Wicks was sworn in for another term, as was Police Judge Hunter Wood.

SOME BOND MONEY LEFT

Three-fourths of the $400,000 Spent On 60 Miles of Old and New Pikes.

REPORT TO FISCAL COURT

Submitted By the Road Commission at Final Meeting of Old Court.

A report made by the Christian County Road Commission to the Fiscal court shows that, out of the $400,000 bond issue for improved thoroughfares in this county voted two years ago, $305,008.94 has been expended. A total of 59.6 miles of new roads have been constructed or reconstructed, at an average price, $5,117.60. There is a balance of $106,067.02 in the road fund, and when it is all used it will give Christian county about 140 miles of new and rebuilt pikes.

The total mileage of pikes, old and new, is now about 130 miles.

By roads, the mileage and cost, under the Montgomery & Perkins Co.'s contracts, shown by the report is given:

GERMANS BREAK OFF THE PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

WAR AIMS SET FORTH BY BRITAIN

Lloyd-George Tells Plainly Terms Upon Which the Huns Can Get Peace.

JUSTICE FOR THE FRENCH

Dismemberment of German Empire Not One of the Present Demands.

Great Britain's war aims were set forth Saturday by Premier Lloyd-George in the broadest and at the same time most specific manner in which they have yet been stated. In one of the most striking and comprehensive utterances of the war the Premier made it clear what the British nation and empire would regard as a just and durable peace. This, he declared, must be achieved by the re-establishment of the sanctity of treaties, territorial readjustments on the basis of self-government and the limitation of armaments guaranteed by an international organization. Great Britain was not fighting, said the Premier, to disrupt Germany, destroy Austria-Hungary or take Turkey's capital or her home lands from her. Belgium must be completely restored and reparations made to her as far as possible; France must have the wrong of 1871—the taking from her of Alsace Lorraine—righted; an independent Poland must be established including all of Polish nationality who desire to join it; the peoples of such regions as Arabia, Palestine, Mesopotamia and Armenia, who have been under Turkish domination, must have their separate national conditions recognized; the wishes and interests of the natives of the German colonies must be primarily regarded by the peace conference; the claims of Italy for reunion for those of her own race and language must be regarded as vital; Rumania, Serbia and Montenegro must be restored.

CHILDREN FIGHT ONE IS KILLED

Negro Boy of 8 Shoots His Sister Aged 11.

The eight-year-old son of George Hopkins, col., of Hinsleytown, shot and killed his sister, aged eleven, at their home Saturday. It seems that the children were playing, when a dispute arose between them and a fight resulted. The girl got the best of the scrap and this so angered her brother that he ran into the house, and securing a shot-gun, came out and shot her. The lead took effect in her body and death resulted in a short while.

John E. Arnett, of Vincennes, in Company A. 152nd Indiana Infantry, stationed at Camp Shelby, Miss., who was spending several days with his parents, had two shots fired at his hand shot off with a shot-gun. Arnett says that the shot was fired along playfully jump.

Fear of Intrigue by Diplomats of the Allies in Sweden Said To Be Reason.

DECIDED AT COUNCIL

German Socialists Reported Restless—Calls the Situation Serious.

The peace negotiations between the central powers and the bolshevik government in Russia have been temporarily suspended by the Germans.

Dissatisfied with the proposals for peace made by the Teutonic allies before the conference at Brest-Litovsk, Leon Trotsky, the bolshevik foreign minister, has been insistent on the deliberations being held on neutral soil instead of at the German eastern headquarters. The Germans, however, had been equally as firm in their determination not to treat with Russians at any other place than Brest-Litovsk.

BOLSHEVIKI NOT FALLING INTO THE TRAP.

German advices Saturday were to the effect that the bolshevik delegates, on finding that the representatives of the Teutonic allies were at Brest-Litovsk awaiting them had started for this town, but nothing has come through to show that these had any foundation in fact. The decision of the Germans to discontinue the sittings were arrived at during a crown council held in Berlin Saturday, which was attended by Field Marshal von Hindenburg and General von Ludendorff, first quartermaster general.

A belated dispatch from Berlin gives as the reason for the refusal of the Germans to consider Stockholm a place where peace might be advantageously discussed, the fear that British, French and American diplomats in the Swedish capital would by intrigue render all endeavors futile. GERMAN SOCIALISTS RESTLESS.

Dispatches from Berlin indicate that although the reichstag parties in the main are supporting the government, considerable political unrest is prevalent and efforts are being made to hold the socialists in line. The socialist organ in Berlin characterizes the situation as extraordinarily serious.

Although the weather continues cold and much snow lies on the ground in northern France there has been considerable activity by the infantry in the Arras sector, in Flanders and on the eastern part of the front along the Moselle river. Near Bullecourt the British have recaptured in a counter-attack the sap taken Saturday by the Germans. There were intermittent artillery duels along the entire front.

In northern Italy the opposing artillery is hammering away at each other. Several attempts by the Austro-Germans to make headway, with small detachments between the Brenta and the Piave rivers were repulsed.

Again there has been considerable fighting in the air on the western front.

The German war office asserts that the German aviators during the week have accounted for 23 allied airplanes and two captive balloons. French aviators have brought down 3 German machines and also carried out bombing operations behind the enemy's lines. To the ranks of experienced aviators shortly will be added the first group of young American pilots and observers to take instruction near the battle front. They are already finished their first term and now are to be sent to the front to continue their work under actual battle conditions.

Small Farm Sold.

Dr. A. Tate on Saturday sold his small farm of 60 acres on the Palmyra pike, six miles from town to J. E. White, of Lafayette. Immediate possession was given. Mr. White has a son who is a doctor near by.

How a Holiday Was Made Interesting

By ALAN HINSDALE

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

It was a dismal afternoon in November, one of those cheerless, cloudy days when the sun does not shine, the wind is chilly and a few dead leaves still hang to the trees. I had nothing to do since it was a holiday. About three o'clock I telephoned Mildred to ask if I might come over and get away with the rest of the day until dinner time. She said I might, so I accepted my own invitation.

I found Mildred in the library. The contrast within and without rendered the former especially cheery. There was a fire of logs on the hearth, there were plants in pots and a canary bird.
"Draught these holidays," I said;
"they're hard to get through with, except in the summer, when I wish it was all holiday."

"I'll try to make the rest of this one bearable for you," said Mildred.

So we chatted for half an hour,
when Mildred took up a pack of cards and shuffled them.

"Shall I tell your fortune?" she asked.

"If you like."

She drew a card table before the fire, taking a seat on one side, while I did the same on the other.

Mildred turned a card.

"The queen of spades. There is a dark lady—a brunette—who is pining for you."

"Blondes are my favorites," I said.
Mildred is a blonde.

Then followed the knave of diamonds.

"This is your rival. The color being red, he is fairly well-to-do."

"All right," I said. "Let him spend all the money he wants on the brunnette; I don't want her."

The next card was the queen of hearts.

"Aha! There comes my girl!" I exclaimed.

"Yes, but you don't know that she loves you."

"Are you sure she doesn't?"

"Well, she might a little bit. She respects you."

"Come, come; I don't want any of this sister business."

"But you must take what the cards say."

"Proceed."

Presently the king of diamonds was turned up.

"A very rich man loves the queen of hearts, an oldish man. She is not dazzled by his wealth, but his position is excellent."

"I think I know the gentleman," I said, frowning.

"You don't, either; I know who you think he is, but—"

"Is the first letter of his name R?"

She did not reply to my question, but went on turning the cards. Ace, two, three came up.

"You are going to propose to the queen of hearts three times."

"You bet I don't. If she doesn't accept me the first time I ask her, I don't want her."

Then the knave of clubs came up.

"Another rival," she said.

"For the queen of spades or the queen of hearts?"

"I don't know," she said listlessly.

"I do; he is the fellow who sports himself on the grilliron. He made that big run and scored a touch-down the other day."

"I don't know who you mean," she said.

"Oh, yes, you do; he is the chap who danced three times in succession with the queen of hearts at a certain ball
the other night."

"And who sat out three dances with
—with the queen of spades?"

"Didn't he have provocation when the queen of hearts acted so?"

"Who began it?"

"You did."

She looked up at me with another of those smiles on her lips, and this time a dimple in each cheek.

"I thought this was fortune-telling,"
she said, and went on turning the cards.
I put my hand on hers to stop her.

"Mildred," I said, "it's time to stop this nonsense of using kings and queens for real persons."

She stopped turning the cards, but I didn't take my hand from hers. It was very soft and warm.

No one wishes to propose in a noise, and the bird sang so loud that I was upset by it. I paused, and Mildred rose from her chair, went to the bird and began to chirp to it. The spell was broken. I looked at my watch.

"It's near dinner time," I said; "I must be going."

"Tata."

"Tata."

I went home and wrote a letter to Mildred. All there was in it was: "I love you; will you be my wife?"

The reply was even more laconic. It was simply:

"Yes."

Acquiring Happiness.

Happiness is something that is not to be acquired in the way that we acquire other things. It is not something entirely separate from ourselves, and our work, as so many other things are, and if we are patient and look for it,
we shall find it hidden in many places, and a part of many things that at first we did not recognize as akin to it, in any way. Look about you, and see if you are not missing much of happiness that might be yours, if only you would recognize it when it crosses your pathway—Exchange.

TERRIBLY SWOLLEN

Suffering Described As Torture
Relieved by Black-Draught.

Rossville, Ga.—Mrs. Kate Lee Able, of this place, writes: "My husband is an engineer, and once while fixing, he injured himself with a piece of heavy machinery, across the abdomen. He was so sore he could not bear to press on himself at all, on chest or abdomen. He weighed 165 lbs., and fell off until he weighed 110 lbs., in two weeks."

He became constipated and it looked like he would die. We had three different doctors, yet with all their medicine, his bowels failed to act. He would turn up a ten-cent bottle of castor oil, and drink it two or three days in succession. He did this yet without result. We became desperate, he suffered so. He was swollen terribly. He told me his suffering could only be described as torture.

I sent and bought Theodor's Black-Draught. I made him take a big dose, and when it began to act he fainted, he was in such misery, but he got relief and began to mend at once. He got well, and we both feel he owes his life to Theodor's Black-Draught."

to keep fit, ready for the day's work.

ACTUAL COST OF SHEEP CARE

Hard to Figure in Dollars and Cents Labor Required—Much Depends on Equipment.

The actual value in dollars and cents of the labor required in the care of a flock of sheep and lambs for any given period is hard to figure. Much depends on one's equipment and its adaptability to sheep. The value of the manure must be taken into consideration, as also must the use of farm work during the month just before pasture comes in.

Summer pasture for sheep is worth about 25 cents per head per month.
Two lambs are considered to average the equal of one sheep during the pasture season. One-fifth of the wool and one-fifth of the lambs would be reasonable pay for the care of the flock.

Fine for Wool and Mutton.

and its pasture. The portion of the wool paying for the shearing and care for the month preceding pasture. With five-sixths of the ewes rearing twins we have 183 per cent increase. That

COLTS PAY FOR HORSE WORK

Fine Points of Farm Management Illustrated by South Dakota Farmer—Uses Mares.

(By W. A. OSTRANDER, South Dakota
State College.)

A farmer in Spink county, South Dakota, was shown last spring that he should get his horse work done cheaper in order to make his farm pay better. So he sold two geldings, aged seven years old, for $450, and bought two mares of about the same age and quality for $425, which raised two colts. On analyzing his business, we found that his horse work cost him practically nothing for 1916. The colts paid the bill. This fact is convincing his neighbors that there is something in the finer points of farm management.

GOOD AND INFERIOR HORSES

Careful Consideration Should Be Given to Sires at Present Time—Difference in Price.

There has never been a time when the sires to which mares are to be bred should be more carefully considered than the present year. The last five years have seen a gradually increasing difference between the price of good and of inferior horses.
During the last year those horses and mules which were good enough to do some job well have found ready sale, while others have been a drug on the market, and have lost money for the men who produced them.

PROPER EXERCISE FOR BULL

Keep Him in Separate Paddock Where He Will Always Be Under Control, Is Safe Plan.

When you have made your purchase of a good baby beef sire, don't keep him shut up without exercise, and by all means do not underfeed him. More bulls are spoiled by underfeeding and lack of exercise than by overfeeding, but in seeking to have your bull get plenty of exercise don't let him run with the cows. Keep him in a separate paddock where you will always have him under proper control.
It's the safe and the economical plan to follow.

CORRECT COLLAR FOR HORSE

Styles Are Created Mostly by Use of Different Materials—Metal Is Not Much Used.

The styles of horse collars are created mostly by the use of different kinds of materials in their construction. Such materials as heavy duck, ticking and leather are used either alone or in various combinations. Al-metal collars may also be bought, but are not so much used.

REPUTATION

Unyielding adherence to principles gives character to a financial institution and safeguards the interests entrusted to it; but it is the individual method employed in business dealings which distinguishes a bank and establishes its reputation.
We are proud of ours.

Mrs. Simpson's Boomerang

By ETHEL HOLMES

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Mollie," said Mrs. Simpson to her friend Mrs. Mariwenner, "Are you confident that your husband is true to you?"

"Perfectly," was the reply. "I wish I could feel the same about mine. Don't you ever watch him?"

"Every night."

"Why, I thought you said you trusted him."

"I do not trust men generally in such matters. While I trust Jack implicitly as an individual, as one of the male sex, I don't trust him at all."

"Why do you watch him at night, especially?"

"What I mean by that is I go through his pockets for love letters every night after he is in bed."

"I see; that's a good scheme; I will avail myself of the suggestion."

Mrs. Simpson did avail herself of the suggestion and at the end of a few months was rewarded—if it may be so considered—with a find. In Mr. Simpson's vest pocket was a slip of paper on which were the figures 1, 12, 9, 4, 7, in lead pencil.

Now Mrs. Simpson had married in opposition to her parents' wishes and they had resisted to many devices, whereby to communicate in spite of being watched. Mrs. Simpson, then Miss Mollieaux, was very ingenious. She gave Simpson an expedient to use when he wished to meet her that would not cause suspicion. He was to mail her an advertising card, on which had been put in pencil certain figures denoting the month, the day, and the hour. Thus if he wished to see her on the seventh day of November, at three o'clock in the afternoon, the figures would be 11, 7, 3. The place of meeting was always the same and need not be designated on the card.

Mrs. Simpson had hardly seen the figures on the slip she had found in her husband's pocket when she inferred that her invention of several years before had become a boomerang. She collapsed, but not for long. Before many minutes had passed she had made up her mind to interpret the message and surprise the guilty parties at their meeting. Taking up the paper she noticed that the first figure was 1. January was the first month in the year. It was now December. The next figure was 12, might represent the day of the meeting. It was now the 28th of December. The figure 9 must mean nine o'clock either in the morning or evening. What 4 and 7 meant she could not tell. Doubtless the guilty pair had invented a way to designate the place of meeting.

Mrs. Simpson was quite sure that on the 12th of the next month, at nine in the evening her husband would meet her rival; but since she did not know where, she could not confront them.

There was a cold time between Mr. and Mrs. Simpson from the 28th of December to the 12th of January. Mr. Simpson was at a loss to account for the reason, but disclaimed to ask for it more than once, when he obtained no satisfaction.

It was Mrs. Simpson's intention on the evening of the 12th of January to hang on to her husband like a leech.

She would prevent his meeting her rival, and would accuse him of his perfidy.

One evening at dinner she asked him if he remembered the device she had given him whereby to notify her when he wished her to meet him. He said he remembered her ingenuity very well and suggested that if ever she became obliged to earn her own living she should apply for a position in a detective office.

"I have often thought since then," she said, "how we could add to the device a plan to indicate by figures, the meeting place."

Whether Mr. Simpson refused to be caught in this trap his wife set for him to give her a clue to the last two figures of the cipher message, or whether he did not know what she meant, he did not appear to take any further interest in the matter and made no reply.

On the evening of the 12th of January Mr. Simpson about eight o'clock told his wife that he had an engagement with his partner to talk over a business program for the year. Mrs. Simpson stood like a statue, listened to what he said, then handed him the slip of paper saying:

"I see that you have used my ingenuity to communicate with your new flame, but in this case she seems to have addressed you instead of your addressing her."

Simpson looked at the cipher then at his wife.

"If you would like to meet her," he said calmly, "you can do so by going with me to the office."

Mrs. Simpson did not understand this move, but she put on her hat and cloak and went with her husband. When they arrived there, the office was lighted up and Mr. Simpson's partner was waiting for him.

"Jack," said Simpson, "I've found the missing key to our new safe we had so much trouble about a couple of weeks ago."

Simpson took the cipher from his pocket and explained it to his wife:

"I ordered the key of the new safe to be made on these numbers. I stand for the first letter in the alphabet, 12 for the 12th, or 1; 9 for the 9th and so on, the whole spelling the name of my dear wife."

Mr. and Mrs. Simpson then went to the office and found their partner waiting for them.

PROPER SELECTION OF SIRE

One of First Considerations in Breeding of Livestock—Pure Bred Gives Best Results.

One of the first considerations in the breeding of livestock is the selection of the proper sire. The influence of the sire is pre-eminent because he directly affects a greater number of offspring than does the single female. There can be no improvement or grading-up process by the use of scrub sires. Horse breeders should recognize the fact that it is not a paying proposition simply to breed mares to any stallion that may be available. A sound, pure-bred stallion should be used if the best results are to be obtained.

The stallion selected should conform as closely as possible to the breed and type of the mares that are to be bred. Stallions of pure breeding are, by virtue of their unmixed ancestry, possessed of greater prepotency than are grades or scrubs, and will therefore invariably impress their offspring with their breed characteristics and individual merit.

A low service fee is too often the deciding factor with many farmers and mare owners in the selection of a sire. A low service fee ought never to be a temptation, but rather should be taken as a warning. A low fee is usually a sign of an inferior stallion. Colts from inferior or scrub sires will sell for much less than those sired by the sound, pure-bred stallion.

SALT ESSENTIAL FOR SHEEP

Particulars of Interesting Experiment Conducted in France—Mineral of Big Value.

The value of salt for sheep is not as fully realized as it should be, and the particulars of an experiment conducted in France some years ago provides interesting information:

Three lots of sheep were fed on hay, straw, potatoes and beans for 134 days. One lot had no salt; one lot one-half ounce each day, and the other lot three-fourths ounce each day. Those that had one-half ounce gained 4 1/2 pounds more than those that had no salt, and 1 1/4 pounds more than those that had three-fourths ounce. The sheep that had salt cut 1 1/4 pounds more wool, and a better fleece than those that had no salt, and showed much better results in both quality and texture in the wool.

MULE AND HORSE SHORTAGE

War Demand and Few Number of Animals Bred Are Bound to Bring About Higher Prices.

(Clemson College Bulletin.)

More than a million horses and mules of the United States have been used for military purposes in connection with the European war during the last 18 months—that is about one horse to every 20 in the country. For some time before the European war prices had sagged until breeders had barely more than 50 per cent of their mares mated. The war demand and the few number of animals bred are bound to bring about high prices for horses and mules, not only during the war but for several years after.

There are probably 20,000 mares on South Carolina farms, and only 2,000 to 3,000 of these are regularly producing foals. At least 12,000 of these mares should be regularly foaling.

To forestall the shortage and high prices as much as possible, the logical thing to do is to put every mare to raising colts. The average farmer is not advised to replace all of his work mules with horses, but a sufficient number should be kept to raise aninals to replace worn-out work stock.

Above all, breed to big strong-boned jacks and registered draft stallions of pure breeding, sound and of acceptable weight.

FARROWING HOUSE FOR SOWS

Building Usually Preferred Is One With Pens on Each Side and Alley in Middle.

There are two kinds of farrowing houses—the stationary and the portable. A breeder needs both if he has from 15 to 20 brood sows farrowing about the same time. The kind of farrowing house usually preferred is one with pens on each side with a four-foot hallway through the middle, with plenty of light and no direct draft. The pens should be at least 10 by 12 feet with a similar space on the outside for the sow to exercise.

CLASS ONE TO DO FIGHTING

New Armies to Be Chiefly Young Bachelors and Married Men.

700,000 AVAILABLE A YEAR

Crowder Asks That Youths Be Made Selectives as They Round 21.

Washington, Jan. 7.—All men for the war armies to be raised by the United States will come from class one under the new selective service plan. That means the nation's fighting is to be done by young men without families dependent on their labor for support and unskilled in necessary industrial or agricultural work.

Provost Marshal General Crowder announces the new policy in an exhaustive report upon the operation of the selective draft law submitted to Secretary Baker and sent to Congress. He says class one should provide men for all military needs of the country and to accomplish that object he urges amendment of the draft law so as to provide that all men who have reached their twenty-first birthdays since June 5, 1917, shall be required to register for classification. That, in the interest of fair distribution of the quotas of states or districts be determined hereafter on the basis of the number of men in class one, and not upon population.

700,000 EFFECTIVE MEN A YEAR.

Available figures indicate, the report says, that there are one million physically and otherwise qualified men under the present registration who will be found in class one when all questionnaires have been returned and the classification period ends Feb. 15. To this the extension of registration to men turning 21 since June 5 of last year and thereafter will add 706,995 effective men a year.

Class one comprises: Single men without dependent relatives; married men who have habitually failed to support their families, who are dependent upon wives for support or are not usefully engaged, and whose families are supported by incomes independent of their labor; unskilled laborers, unskilled industrial laborers, registrants by or in respect of whom no deferred classification is claimed or made, registrants who failed to submit questionnaires and in respect of whom no deferred classification is claimed or made, and registrants not included in any other division of the schedule.

Narrowed down under the analysis of the first draft made in the report, the plan places upon unattached single men and married men with independent incomes most of the weight of military duty, for the aggregate number of men in the other divisions of class one is very small.

A. E. Fisher, a brakeman, was killed in Louisville Thursday.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

What To Do When Baby Has The Croup

Pennsylvania Mother Advises Use of "External" Treatment
—VapoRub.

What to do when baby has the croup is a serious matter in every home. In the South the universal treatment is a good rub over the throat and chest with Vick's VapoRub Salve. The body warmth releases the ingredients in the form of vapors that, inhaled with each breath, quickly relieve the breathing. In addition, Vick's is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, relaxing the nervous tension and taking away the sickness and soreness.

Last winter Mrs. W. M. Rosenberger, 128 W. Broad St., Souderton, Pa., tried Vick's VapoRub for the first time, and writes—

"I have used Vick's VapoRub on my baby when he has had croup and colds in his throat and chest, and it has helped wonderfully. I think it is the thing of its kind I have ever used, and always want some in my house."

In addition to croup and colds, Vick's will be found useful in a hundred ways in the home as a salve for burns, bruises, itchings, etc. Three sizes, 25c, 50c or $1.00.

Realism in the Fox Pictures

Having reproduced the Sphinx and Pyramids of ancient Egypt for "Cleopatra," the mosques and minarets of oriental Bagdad for "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," the Nashville of 1830 for "The Conqueror" and the streets of Paris, with all their turbulence, for "Les Miserables" and "Du Barry"—and all in films this year, too, the William Fox technical department scores another triumph in the construction of trenches and tanks exactly like those "over there."

One of the most interesting and picturesque scenes in "The Pride of New York" shows the trenches being stormed by several companies of United States troops attached to a regiment now encamped in the Empire State. They were in charge of their regular officers, who were glad of the opportunity to give their men practical experience in trench warfare at the expense of moving pictures.

COBB'S DOG AS MAIL CLERK

Newfoundland Solemnly Sticks Out Tongue and Licks Stamps to Amusement of the Writer.

Irvin S. Cobb points with pride in many of his writings to Paducah, Ky. Paducah reciprocates with adulations of her favorite son. One story is related by a former resident of that center of mint-julep culture, now a prominent zinc mining operator in the Oklahoma field, according to the Saturday Evening Post.

"I never was right well acquainted with Cobb," declares the mining man, "but he's better looking now than he was then. His features were the same, but he was a lot thinner. He was so good-natured that we never noticed his looks. I remember one night about midnight I was walking past the newspaper office where he worked and heard him howling with laughter inside. I knew it was because nobody in three counties had a mouth so big or could laugh so loud. I went in and he was almost rolling out of his chair. He had a big heap of letters and was putting stamps on them. Beside him was a big Newfoundland dog. He would tear off a stamp and the dog would stick out his tongue very solemnly and lick it. And then Cobb would laugh until the building shook. I never had so much fun as sitting there an hour listening to him laugh."

DROWNING BABY WAS POODLE

Canine Had Fallen Into Cistern and Brave Man Was Induced to Leap to Its Rescue.

It all began when Snowball, a fluffy poodle dog, pursued a chicken one morning in the back yard at the home of Charles Lefever of 534 South Eleventh street, Kansas side, says a Kansas City correspondent. Snowball became so interested in his quarry he failed to notice an open cistern top until after he had fallen in.

For 30 minutes Snowball's owner, Mrs. Myrtle Lewis, who lives at that address, fished frantically, if vainly, to get her pet out. Then she called the fire department. Meanwhile Snowball had sunk twice. She ran breathlessly to the front sidewalk and pleaded with a man passing along the street to rescue Snowball.

The man was a foreigner. While he could not understand her words he partly translated her gesticulations. He rushed to the cistern and jumped in. About the time the firemen arrived he was spluttering things in Polish that sounded like profanity. He supposed it was a baby.

RUSSIANS NOT TROUBLESOME.

The Japan Gazette says that hundreds of Russians, returning to their native land from the United States, are stranded in Yokohama and Tokyo. Making a plea for their assistance, it says: "Since the time when Russian refugees on their way to the homeland have made a temporary stopping place of Yokohama, no case of trouble or violence has been reported to the police. Considering that thousands of Russians of all classes have passed through this city, such a statement is distinctly creditable to the exiles."

Importance of Discipline.

There is not that thing in the world of more grave and urgent importance throughout the life of man, than is discipline. What need I instance? He that hath read with judgment of nations and commonwealths, of cities and camps, of peace and war, sea and land, will readily agree that the flourishing and decaying of all civil societies, all the movements and turnings of human occasions, are moved to and fro as on an axle of discipline. So that whatsoever power and sway it mortal things weaker men have attributed to fortune, I durst with more confidence ascribe either to the vigor or the slackness of discipline. And certainly discipline is not only the removal of disorder . . . but the very visible shape and image of virtues; whereby she is not only seen in the regular gestures and motions of her heavenly peace as she walks, but also makes the harmony of her voice audible to mortal ears.—Milton.

Cotton Instead of Silk.

For almost a hundred years no one thought of making thread other than from linen and silk. Cotton was not so much as thought of. Then Napoleon, who had been devastating Europe, thought he would strike a blow at the silk industry of Hamburg, and caused the stocks of silk to be burned. The thread makers of Paisley thus found their supplies of raw material cut off, and they had to look about to find a substitute. Cotton was tried, and was found to answer the purpose so well that the basis of an entirely new industry was laid—the manufacture of "cotton" thread. From this time on the progress of the new industry was steady.

CHEAPER BEEF FROM SILAGE

Successful Experiment Conducted at South Dakota Station by Director Wilson.

A load of steers was recently marketed in Chicago by the South Dakota experiment station which had been fed only corn silage during a period of five months, and brought as killers within $1.50 as much per hundred as the best steers sold. The steers were on the road without any feed in the car for 35 hours and shrank only 40 pounds per head on a rainy day. The average gain per head during the 148-day feeding period was two pounds. These steers consumed 97 tons of silage and made a gain of 5,921 pounds, or an average of 206 pounds each.

This successful experiment was performed under the direction of James W. Wilson, professor of animal husbandry and director of the experiment station, and explodes the theory that corn silage should be fed sparingly and only as part of a ration for dairy cows. "What a wonderful saving it would be for this country," says Director Wilson, "if all yearling steers had made an average gain last winter of two pounds per head, or a little more than the same-aged steer usually makes on grass."

"The corn plant when cured in its own juices seems to be an excellent feed to produce gain—nothing better when we consider cost. And when we consider the hundreds of acres where only part of the crop is harvested—the ears—and the stalks and leaves and husks allowed to waste, we are not very near the maximum stage of production."

SANITARY HOUSES FOR HOGS

Animals Will Respond Very Quickly to Clean Surroundings—Crevices Harbor Vermin.

(By K. J. T. EKBLAW, University of Illinois.)

Though the character usually ascribed to swine is one which gives little or no consideration to cleanliness, still the pig is an animal which will respond very quickly, indeed, to clean surroundings. The building should be so built that its construction will permit of cleaning and thorough disinfecting. This means smooth walls and floors, for if crevices exist they are only harbors for dirt and vermin. On account of the anatomical construction of the pig, his breathing, eating and drinking is done close to the ground, and close to a thousand sources of infection. This makes it all the more necessary that his living quarters be cleaned as often and as thoroughly as possible.

PREVENTING RUNTS IN FALL

Problem Confronts Every Producer of Pork—Scrapers Should Be With Big Pigs.

Preventing runts in fall litters of pigs is a problem that confronts every producer of pork. Establishing pens for pigs of the same size, not more than twenty to the pen, is necessary. Pronounced scrapers should be penned with larger pigs. It is also desirable that all the pigs should be eating well at weaning time. Grain, one pound of middlings to ten pounds of milk, placed in a trough easily reached, will teach them to eat naturally. More grain is added until the weaning ration is one pound middlings to three pounds milk. At two weeks after weaning they should be eating about five pounds for each hundred of live weight, when, if pasture is good, no further increase is necessary. The animals should be kept free from lice and worms. If this practice is followed few or no runts will occur.

WINTER ATTENTION TO RAMS

If Expected to Be Kept in Good, Vigorous Condition He Must Be Given Some Grain.

During the summer months, when the ram is allowed to run on pasture, he does not need grain; but in the winter, if you expect to keep him in good, vigorous condition, he must be supplied with grain at least a month before the breeding season.

A mixture of two parts oats and one part bran has given unusually good results in some of the larger flocks of the West. This ration does not produce fat, but does keep up the vigor of the ram.

It is impossible to suggest the exact amount to be fed, for this can only be determined by watching the animal and studying his condition.

A Sack of Living Matter.

As might be expected, it is among the inhabitants of the water that we find the simplest types of life. One of the polyps, the hydra, illustrates how simple these structures sometimes are. This little creature is nothing more than a sack of living matter, the inside coating attending to the work of digestion and the outside membrane doing the breathing. Yet the functions of the two membranes are so slightly specialized that the polyp may be turned inside out and the former stomach begins respiring, and the former breathing apparatus digests food.

The Berbers are believed to be descendants of the white inhabitants of ancient Europe. They are Mohammedans. Blue eyes, fair hair, and rosy cheeks are quite common among them, and many of the women are strikingly handsome.

Asia Minor Puzzle.

"Asia Minor" is a geographical term of vague extension. It puzzles anyone to say exactly where it leaves off. The name dates only from the fifth century. A. D., when Orosius used it evidently as a novelty. The Roman empire knew no Asia Minor. Indeed, the Roman province of "Asia" was actually smaller than this Lesser Asia. The alternative name Anatolia (land of the sunrise or east), which has found favor with the Turks, is equally indeterminate.

He Couldn't Shoot His Friend

By OSCAR COX

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

There was charge and counter charge in France, the American troops being engaged with the Germans. All day this see-saw went on and toward evening the field was covered with dead and wounded Americans and Germans. At intervals in the fighting the American ambulance corps undertook to bring in some of the wounded, and attempts had even been made to bury the dead.

Just before dark Colonel B., who was traversing the field, caught one of those receptacles in which the American troops bury their dead. What kind of a receptacle is used depends upon circumstances. Sometimes when there is time for an impressive funeral it is a coffin; sometimes when the armies are active it is a rough box, and there are occasions when the dead are shoveled into trenches without any covering whatever.

"What is that doing here?" asked the colonel.

Nobody knew. The colonel was about to make an examination when shells began to burst about him and he and others who were present sought cover.

About ten o'clock that night Colonel B. bethought himself of the burial box that he had seen and began to wonder how it could have come to be on the battlefield. It occurred to him that there had been some stupidity on the part of one under his command and if the general should run across it, there would be some unpleasant criticisms. The colonel, calling his orderly, a strapping son of Erin, told him about the burial box and ordered him to go out and bring it in.

"Mike," he said in conclusion, "if you find a corpse in it you needn't bring the corpse with you; dump it out and bring the box."

"Aye, aye, sir," replied Mike, saluting, and departed on his errand. He had not far to go nor had he anything to fear, for the German lines were several hundred yards distant and there were the remains of scrub trees between them and the Americans. There was a moon but most of the time it was covered by clouds. Mike was not long in making out an object which being made of newly planed wood was very light in color.

He paused and looked at it. There was no braver soldier in the American army than Mike O'Donohue when a real, live, flesh and blood enemy was encountered, but Mike had no stomach for a corpse that might face him with wild ghostly eyes, and through whom a bullet might be sent without effect. Before approaching further he determined to discover whether or not there was a corpse in the box.

"Come out o' that, ye spalpeen," he said. "I know ye're there. Come out, I say, before I put a bullet into ye with my revolver."

To Mike's horror the lid of the box was raised and by the moon he saw a pale face peer out and a voice said: "Don't shoot, my friend, I surrender."

Mike stood trembling like a leaf. He was tempted to turn and run but he shrank from facing his colonel if he did. He stood his ground but was unable to articulate a word. The man in the box threw off the lid and sat up. "I go mit you to der rear," said the corpse.

The corpse got out of the box and advanced toward Mike.

The imagination is capable of working wonders. Mike saw plumb through the figure.

"I am not armed," said the ghost. The statement put courage into Mike. He pulled himself together and was about to return to the colonel with his prisoner when he remembered that his orders were to bring back the box and leave its contents.

"Go back," he said, "and get your coffin. 'Ye're no good yerself; the coffin'll serve for another corpse.'"

The prisoner shouldered the box and the two returned to the colonel.

"Colonel," said Mike, saluting, "I brought ye the box; I didn't think ye want me to leave the corpse, because it's alive."

The colonel, much astonished, called on the prisoner to explain.

"You see, colonel, ven der var brout I vas in der Yarek," said the prisoner, "and I thought to Sherman fight for de Yarek. Vell, ven comt out to back up to day, I sav de Stars and Stripes, I could believe mine was a Yarek, I was astonished. I didn't know whether I vas a Sherman or an American. 'Guthrie' I sav 'dare is mine friend, Herman House who lived next door to me in America. How can I shoot Herman? But I don't shoot my friends my captain v' shoot me.' So I den a bullet graze my sleeve. I fell on de ground and pretended to be dead. After a v' a vagon comt loaded with coffins and dropped one of them goon off a shell hole. Ven de firen' comt on again I got into de coffin for protection. Now you can see I am your prisoner."

"Orderly," said the colonel, "the corporal of the guard."

The corporal was called and when he arrived the colonel ordered him to take the prisoner to where the other prisoners were held, and to discharge that he be treated well. He was ordered to make it known that though the prisoner loved the Fatherland he could not fire on his friends in America.

A Night in a Metropolis

By ALAN HINSDALE

In the great city of New York there is no night. There is darkness in spots; there is artificial illumination; but the great living current does not cease to flow.

One night I lay awake listening to a clock in a church tower strike the hours. There was also a confusion of sounds, the principal one being the passing of elevated trains some distance from me at intervals of a few minutes.

When the clock struck two I rose, dressed myself and went out on the street. The ongoing was the same as at noonday. In my wanderings I reached an embankment of the Hudson river that had been made into a park. Sitting on a bench I gave myself up to meditation. Years ago savages had looked down on the black stream as I was now doing. A time would come when not one of those who made up the stream of life behind me would be alive. And yet the human current would roll on. Where? Who knows? The day may come when the waves of an ocean may roll over Manhattan island as it rolled ages ago.

I was conscious of someone sitting at the other end of the bench on which I rested, and turning my head saw a woman. There was lamplight enough for me to tell that she was a girl, somewhere between seventeen and twenty years old. I did not like the close proximity with a woman at that hour and was about to arise and move when she addressed me.

"Don't go," she said. "I haven't a friend in the world. I have come from the center of that city of sin and sorrow, of good and evil, to find rest from suffering. I find you here alone, and you fear me."

She bent her head down, concealed her face with her hands and moaned. There was no acting in what she did. Such grief as hers was not to be counterfeited. I asked her to tell me her troubles. She said that she was one of the many tributaries to the great human stream ever moving on the island. The flow of country girls to the city like the current it never ceases, despite the countless checks. She had wandered all day looking for work and found none. She was tired and hungry and when night came she had no money with which to buy food or a place to sleep. She had come to the river far from her mad throng, where she could at least suffer alone.

"You mean," I said shuddering, "that you have come to the park embankment where you may find a bench to sit on?"

She made no other reply than moans and sobs. I took money from my pocket and handed it to her. She received it.

"It will avail nothing now," she said. "It would have availed nothing had it come sooner. When day comes I would have been doomed to go from store to store, from factory to factory, looking for work. I am not able to continue the dreadful tramp. Besides, I have reached a point where anything seems more merciful than that merciless flow of humanity."

With this she leaned back on the bench and was silent, motionless. It occurred to me that the most practical thing to do would be to go for one of the city's men appointed for such work. Rising I told her to remain where she was and I would return with someone who would take care of her during the night, and on the morning I would interest myself on her behalf.

I left her and going a short distance found a policeman whom I told that I had found a despairing woman who needed the city's care.

"The town's full of 'em," he said. "I couldn't advise you to get mixed up with one of them. You'll only get yourself in trouble."

"I'll look out for that," I replied. "It's my duty as a policeman when I call on you for aid in such a case to do it."

She reluctantly came with me. We were not far to go. I had kept my eye on the figure on the bench, and when I started for it I saw it plainly.

As we advanced it seemed less and less instead of clearer.

"Where are you going?" asked the policeman.

"To that bench," pointing.

"Though you were taking me to a bench?"

"So I am, don't you see her leaning against the back of the bench?"

"There's no woman there," he looked again. The policeman was silent; the bench was vacant.

"I was too astonished to reply. I stood staring at the point where I had left the girl.

"She's given you the slip," said the policeman. "It's the old story. As soon as you saw me for me, she lit out. I'm not the first young innocent who has been fooled that way."

"And now," he said, "I was not deceived by his words. I went to my duty. Daylight was pouring in at the windows. Throwing myself on the bed I tried to snatch a little sleep, but I could not.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF THE NEW YORK WORLD

IN 1917

Practically a Daily at the price of a Weekly. No other newspaper in the world gives so much at so low a price.

The value and need of a newspaper in the household was never greater than at the present time. We have been forced to enter the great world war, and a large army of ours is already in France. You will want to have all the news from our troops on European battle-fields, and 1918 promises to be the most momentous year in the history of the universe.

No other newspaper at so small a price will furnish such prompt and accurate news of these world-shaking events. It is not necessary to say more.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKIAN (Tri-weekly) together for one year for $2.65. The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.00.

Cigar Lighters in Italy. The Italian substitute for the neat and convenient cigar lighter found in every American cigar store is a long rope lighted and placed outside of the tobacco shop. It is made of cheap hemp, of rope waste, and even of rag twisted roughly into shape and held together by strings of twine. The improvised lighter is made by the storekeeper himself. — Popular Science Monthly.

FARM STOCK

HIGH-CLASS HORSES WANTED

Animal That Performs Work Most Efficiently and Sells at Profit is Most Desirable.

The most desirable horse is the one that performs the work required most efficiently and economically, and sells at the greatest profit. Under average conditions this horse will combine size, substance, style, step and quality. Nothing adds more to the value of a big horse than style, action and quality.

A big horse without these three things is a very undesirable, unsatisfactory and expensive form of motive power, either on the farm or in the city. Each year sees less demand for inferior horses, both large and small, and a corresponding increase in the value of high-class horses of three kinds—wagon horses, chunks and drafters. All of these horses are derived from draft breeds.

Wagon horses weigh from 1,250 to 1,500 pounds, and show style, action, finish and substance to a marked degree. Chunks weigh from 1,350 to 1,600 pounds and are compactly built, about two inches less in height than wagon horses of equal weight. They must show quality, action and especially substance, to sell well. Drafters weigh from 1,600 pounds up. The bigger the better if they show the other qualities and are snappy movers.

KEEP CLOSE TRACK OF HOGS

Make Sure That Animals Are Not Afflicted With Lice—Oilers Are Quite Common.

It is well to keep close track of the hogs and make sure that they are not afflicted with lice. Lice are blood-sucking parasites. They lower the vitality of hogs, not only by sucking the blood but by continual irritation which gives the hog no rest. When hogs have many lice they will not do well and will lose flesh, becoming much weakened in condition and thus more susceptible to disease.

There are various methods of getting rid of lice. Hog oilers are quite common, though the crude oil which is used in them may be applied to the hog directly with a brush. The hogs may be dipped two or three times at intervals of about ten days, using some reliable coal-tar dip or disinfectant. This gives good results.

GRAIN RATION FOR LAMBS

Young Animal Just Beginning to Eat Should Be Given Corn, Oats, Oil Meal and Bran.

A good grain ration for lambs just beginning to eat is ground corn, 1 part; crushed oats, 1 part; linseed oil meal, 1 part; and wheat bran, 2 parts. Wheat bran is very essential in this ration, and the shepherd should always see that it is present. A grain ration consisting of 2 pounds of wheat bran, 1 pound of oats (crushed or being preferred), 1 pound of finely ground cornmeal, and one-half pound of oil meal has proved to be an excellent grain ration for young lambs. It has also been found that a grain mixture of oil meal and cornmeal has given better results than a mixture of cottonseed meal and cornmeal.

ROUGHAGE FOR IDLE HORSES

Expert of North Dakota Station Makes Suggestions on Feeding During Winter Season.

Mr. Peters of the North Dakota experiment station makes the following suggestions on wintering the horse. The work horse that has been properly cared for and fed in the summer can be wintered, when not at work, on such roughage as oats straw, good hay and corn fodder. In addition to the above it may be necessary to give four to five pounds of grain daily per animal in order to maintain them in good flesh. Idle horses should be turned out for exercise every day in winter except on the few stormy winter days that occur during this season.

Called the Bluff

By F. A. MITCHELL

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

When a nation becomes notable for any intellectual achievement the faculty that achieves seems to be inborn in the race. The German race is remarkable for scientific development. This story shows how an uneducated German was willing to suffer imprisonment to test the efficacy of a scientific device.

Herman Gottlieb was suspected of stealing corn from a neighbor's garden. Whether he was really guilty the owner of the garden did not know, but Gottlieb lived near his property and was the only person who did live near it. Besides he was very poor and found it difficult to feed eight or nine children with capacious stomachs. The depredations on the garden continued and the owner decided to make an example of some one, so he pounced upon Gottlieb, had him arrested under the specific charge of stealing a number of ears of corn before daylight on the morning of the arrest. That the prisoner might not be unjustly detained, the trial was set for ten o'clock the day of the arrest.

After the preliminary questions had been put the prosecuting attorney made several attempts to trick the accused man into incriminating himself, but without success. Finally the prosecutor undertook to catch him in a scientific trap.

"Did you ever hear of the X-ray?" he asked Gottlieb.

"No, I never heard about dot; what is it?"

The prosecutor was taken flat aback. How to tell an ignorant man the nature of the X-ray was a poser. The judge, seeing his discomfiture, smiled.

"The X-ray is a very bright light—so bright that it enables one to look inside of a man. The machine, or we call it lamp, that emits the ray was invented by a countryman of yours."

"A Sherman?" asked the prisoner.

"Yes, a German. His name was Roentgen. The X-ray is sometimes called the Roentgen ray."

Herman seemed interested. The lawyer proceeded.

"This machine is now used by surgeons to locate a bullet that is lodged inside a man. If you had swallowed a nail it could be seen in your stomach by means of this instrument."

"Got in Himmel! Dot machine was invented in Sherman?"

"Yes, it was made in Germany; but I'm going to use it in America. I'm going to bring one of them into the court and look into your stomach with it."

"Vot you do dat for?"

"To prove that you ate corn for breakfast this morning."

"Vil dat machine show corn in my stomach?" asked the prisoner, seemingly more interested in the machine than that it might prove him guilty.

"If you robbed the cornfield as charged, you undoubtedly ate the fruits of your robbery for breakfast and the Roentgen lamp will show it in your stomach."

"Mein Gott! vot a machine?"

"Now, Gottlieb, if you will plead guilty I will ask his honor to give you a light sentence."

The prisoner appeared to be lost in thought. The prosecutor, thinking that he had not heard the question, repeated it. Then suddenly Gottlieb called the bluff.

"Bring on dot machine."

By this time the judge, the court and the spectators were on the tip of expectation of an amusing scene. The prosecutor assumed a severe air and, calling an attendant, sent him for an electric lamp. The prisoner was so intent upon it that he did not see the smiles of those present.

"Prisoner," said the prosecuting attorney with great severity, "will you plead guilty and take a light sentence or suffer the full penalty of the law if I find corn in your stomach?"

Herman's face assumed an expression of a struggle within him. The court was led to believe that he dreaded exposure from the Roentgen ray, and doubted its efficacy. Finally he turned to the judge and said:

"Vat punishment you gif me if I find dot corn in my stomach?"

"Ten days in jail."

The prisoner looked again at the electric lamp, which the policeman was flashing for the purpose of lighting him.

"Ferry well, I go to shail; but I won't confess dat I vas guilty."

There was nothing for the attorney to do but carry out his purpose. He flashed the lamp against the prisoner's stomach and feigned to examine it with a reading glass.

"There it is," he said. "You must have eaten a dozen ears." Then turning to the judge, he added: "Having proved the prisoner guilty, your honor, it remains for you to pass sentence upon him. And on account of his persistence in denying his guilt I urge that you make it all that the law allows."

Repressing his laughter, the judge said:

"Prisoner stand up."

The prisoner rose.

"Have you anything to say why you should not pass sentence upon you?"

"Yes, Juich. Dot machine was never made in Sherman in de worlt. It is a humbug and don't tell de truth. All I had for breakfast dis morning vas a dish of sauerkraut."

There was an explosion in the courtroom, the only official word spoken being, "Case dismissed."

Hun Spy Methods.

At Ghent Dec. 20, 22 persons were executed by the Germans for alleged espionage. Four were from Antwerp, 8 from Ghent and one a Dutch skipper. Many others were given prison terms and others are awaiting trial.

OLD FIRM'S NEW NAME

Prominent Drug House Takes Names of Its Present Owners.

R. E. COATES.

The corporate name of the Anderson-Fowler Co. has been changed to conform to its new ownership. This well-known drug company has long been located at Ninth and Main streets. It was originally owned by A. H. Anderson and L. E. Fowler. Later A. C. Overshiner bought an interest and in turn sold it to G. L. Campbell and both Messrs. Overshiner and Fowler retired. The business is now owned by Mr. Campbell and R. E. Coates, the active manager. Under the new amended articles the capital is still $10,000. Mr. Coates will have entire charge of the business as heretofore. He is a registered pharmacist of long experience and is familiar with the drug business in all of its details. Robert Stowe and Maxie Blythe will remain with the company and Mrs. Ella Shadoin will be the book-keeper.

The store will be the principal news agency of the city.
